PREFATORY NOTE TO H.

The half-volume of the Dictionary containing the words beginning with H includes 8,000 Main words, 2,260 Special combinations explained under the Main words, 2,145 Subordinate entries, making a total of 13,305 words, besides 2,708 obvious combinations recorded and, for the most part, illustrated by quotations, but without separate explanation. Of the Main words, 1,463, or 16.44%, are marked (†) as obsolete, and 326, or 4.22%, are marked (||) as alien or imperfectly naturalized. The illustrative Quotations number 59,776*.

A characteristic of the letter H, which meets us on the threshold, is that in some words, the straggling survivors of a once numerous host, initial h is silent, or not pronounced; the history of this phenomenon is dealt with in the initial article on the letter. But h is not silent in any word of Old English or native origin; and of all the words from the beginning of Ha- to the end of Hu-, those of native origin, which have come down to us from the earliest periods of the language, or have been formed of native elements or onomatopoeically in subsequent times, form an unusually large proportion, including representatives of every part of speech. Among the substantives are the names of three important bodily members, HAND, HEAD, HEART, which, with their derivatives, occupy 109 columns, and show (as does also heal) how the designations of prominent parts of the body lend themselves to all manner of figurative and transferred applications, and to a luxuriant growth of phrases. There are also the substantives HALF, HEAT, HEAVEN, HELL, HILL, HOME, HOPE, HORSE, HOUSE, HUNDRED, HUNGER, and their derivatives; the adjectives HARD, HEAVY, HIGH (occupying with its family 26 columns), HOLY, HOT. The verbs include HAVE, which ranks with BE and DO in its range of service and difficulty of definition, also hang (with its complex form-history), hear, heave, help, hew, HOLD, and the historically interesting RIGHT. The pronouns include HE, and its various inflexional and derivative forms, current and obsolete, hem, hemen, her, her1, her2, her3, her4, hers1, hers2, herself hi2, him, himself, hin, his1, his2, his3, his4, hisis, hisn, of which eight are still in general use, six others retained in dialect speech, and eight entirely obsolete. The general etymological relations of the group are set forth under HE, but the special history and uses of each inflexional form are treated separately under the form itself. Important adverbs are HERE (with its family, 9 columns) hence, hither, HOW (with its numerous compounds). Reduplicated or riming adverbs, clearly of native formation, abound in H: witness hab-nab, harum-scarum, helter-skelter, hiddy-giddy, higgledy-piggledy, hefty-tighty, hirrie-harrie, hivie-skievie, hurly-burly, hurly-scary. H contains also numerous emotional exclamations, ha! haw! heh! heigh-ho! hem! hey! hi! ho! hum! humph!

There are also many important words from Old French, as habit, hackney, haggard, harbinger, hawkety, haunt, herald, herb, honest, honour, -able, hospital, host4, host5, hostel, hour, humble, humour, hurt. The majority of these are ultimately from Latin, and their derivatives in English are usually after Latin types; but of words directly from Latin, H contains a smaller number than usual, mainly because no Latin prefix begins with this letter.

But the balance of words of classical origin is more than restored from Greek, which gives not only the groups related to HARMONY, HERESY, HERO, HISTORY, HORIZON, and the prolific technical series in hæmoe- and hæmato-, helio-, hemero-, hemi-, hepta-, hetero-, hexa-, hero-, hippo-, histo-, holo-, homalo-, homo-, homoeo-, hoplo-, and horo-, but supplies (with scarcely an exception) the entire body of words in HY-, comprising the large groups compounded with hydro-, hygro-, hylo-, hymen, hymn, hyper-, hypo-, and hystera-. No greater contrast can well be conceived than that between these scientific and technical words in HY-, of which the etymology is certain, and the highly vernacular group immediately preceding them in HU-, including hubbub, huddle, huff, hug, hugger-mugger, hulk, hull, humbug, hump, hunch, hunks, hurley-burly, hurry-burry, hurry-scary, many of which offer no credentials of their actual origin.

Among words of particular interest, etymological or historical, may be mentioned habergeon, habitation, haggis, hall, HANAPER, HANDICAP, handel, handsome, hanse, HARBOUR, harlequin, harlot, harness, HARQUEBUS, havo, hazardous, havers, heath, heathen, heather, heaven, hell, HENCHMAN, heptarchy, herald, heron, HERONSEW, kickwall, hide, hide, hobbydewey, hobbyhorse, hockday, hocktide, hocus-pocus, Hogen-mogen, Hogmanay, hogshad, holiday, hollyhock, hornbook, hotchpot, Humbug, hummock, hump, hunch, hurricane, husbandland, husting, hydra, hypnotism, hypostasis. Under many of these, new facts as to their origin or history are given, and on all it will be found that new light is shed by the historical method of this Dictionary.

PREFATORY NOTE TO H.

For help with this letter we have been indebted to many voluntary workers. At an early stage the quotations for HO- were arranged alphabetically and chronologically by Mr. S. Taylor, the White House, Crossings, Chapel-en-le-Frith; and those for Hu- and Hy- by Mr. A. W. Longden, of Hook Green, Marple, Stockport. The sub-editing of HA- was undertaken by the late Mr. G. A. Schrumpf, who however, at his death, had only partially put the quotations in order as far as Har. The materials for HI- were sub-edited by Dr. R. J. Lloyd, of Liverpool; parts of HO- and Hy-, Hoeo to Horns, Hypo to Hypo, by the late Mr. John Peto; another part of Ho-, Horno to Ho-, and the whole of Hu-, by the late W. N. Woods, B.A., and Mrs. Woods; the first half of Hy- to Hym- by Miss M. Quick, of Clifton. Nearly the whole of the rest of the letter, comprising Harm- to Haz-, all He, Ho- to Hon-, was sub-edited between 1883 and 1890 by E. L. Brandreth, Esq., Member of Council of the Philological Society, who subsequently also, 1895-98, completed the partial work of Mr. Schrumpf at HA-, and then revised and re-subedited nearly the whole of his own earlier work, together with some later sections of Ho- and Hu-. Four of these excellent workers have, alas! passed away without seeing any part of H in print; to the survivors, and especially to Mr. Brandreth, whose zealous and scholarly labours in a decade of ten years, have contributed in an eminent degree to the result now presented, the heartiest acknowledgements are offered.

In the proof stages, we have again to record the help, above all, of Dr. Fitzedward Hall (whose stores of quotations so generously opened to the Dictionary have contributed to the literary history of words in every degree to the result now presented, the heartiest acknowledgements are offered.
