Searching the OED

Browsing the dictionary:

The Browse panel is in the centre of the Home page and in the top right-hand corner of every other page:

Browse the dictionary from A-Z

Browse A-Z dictionary entries much as you would a printed dictionary, by clicking ‘Dictionary’ in the Browse panel (see above).

A list of entries beginning with A, n. is displayed. Each consists of the headword (the name of the entry) and the entry’s first line. You can jump to any alphabetical point in the dictionary, or order the entries by date or frequency instead of alphabetically, if you prefer.

Browse by entry:

Browse by frequency:

Browse by date:
Explore using the word wheel

The word wheel, headed ‘Jump to:’, contains the list of all the entries in the dictionary. It always opens with the most recently viewed entry highlighted in the centre of the list. Click on any entry to display it.

Searching the dictionary:

How to use quick search

The quick search bar can be found on the OED homepage and at the top of every entry page, and finds main dictionary entries, such as alphabet, break, xylophone. It also finds phrases and compounds listed within main entries, such as to look up or alphabet book, and variant spellings such as dictionarie.

In a quick search, it is not necessary to type punctuation or worry about special characters, accents, hyphens, or capital letters. Discover more about using quick search here.

Wildcard searches

The quick and advanced searches will not recognize a misspelling (although if no results are found, you will be offered a list of the closest alternatives alphabetically). If you do not know how to spell a word, you can use a wildcard character in your search. A wildcard is a symbol which stands for any character. Two wildcards are available. The question mark ? represents the occurrence of any one single character, and the asterisk * represents the occurrence of any number of characters (or no character at all).

For example:
- c?t finds cat, cot, cut
- c*t finds cat, caught, commencement, conflict, consent, cot, cut, etc.

Wildcards are useful if you do not know how to spell a word, if you are not sure in what form the term you want appears in the dictionary, or if you want to find several terms beginning with the same root. Type your wildcard search directly into the quick search box. Find out more here.
How to use the advanced search

An advanced search is a full search of the entire dictionary text. It finds your term wherever it occurs in the dictionary. This could be in the form of an entry name, part of another word’s definition, in a quotation, etc.

Advanced search can be especially useful for very specific searches. You can utilise the search area functionality to search by each section of an entry. You can also use filters to narrow your search to match certain criteria, for example selecting ‘Korean’ in the language of origin filter will provide results for all words of Korean origin.

Advanced search is located under the Search box at the top of the page or in the centre of the Home page. Discover more about using advanced search here.

Search area options:

- Full Text

  - First Quotation
  - Quotation Date
  - Quotation Author
  - Quotation Title
- Quotation Text

Filtering options:

Browsing by categories or sources:

Categories allow you to explore the dictionary through groupings of words in, for instance, a subject or from a particular origin. If you want to find all the Carribbean borrowings in English, or find the first word related to espionage to enter the dictionary, this is the function for you.
With sources you can browse the top 1000 sources to be cited as example sentences in the dictionary.

You can find both categories and sources on the home page search bar, as well as a link to the Historical Thesaurus, which allows you to search for historical synonyms. Find our helpful guide to the Historical Thesaurus here.

Understanding the results page:

If there is only one result from your search, you'll be taken directly to that entry. If your search has multiple results, a list will be displayed. Results are grouped by part of speech, and you can re-order results by frequency or date to suit your search needs.

Results are also shown for related phrases, definitions, quotations, etymologies, and full text of the OED. You can also widen your search from your results page, by clicking on 'quotations' for example, if you'd like to see quotations which contain your searched term, or 'phrases' if you'd like to see phrases that contain it.
Further refine your search by using the options that appear on the right-hand side of the results page. When you select an option, the results list will refresh accordingly.
